

Seminar for Writing scientific papers In English

Co-hosted by :
Academic Support Office
Center for Diversity and Inclusion

Writing and revising a research article
Selecting the right journal for your article

Date/Time: Thursday 23 January, 2020 / 14:30 ~ 17:00

Venue: Bunkyo Sky Hall

Open to: Faculty members, researchers, and students of Nagasaki University

Free
of Charge

Programs

※Language: English

■ 14:30 – 15:50 You will learn the principles of good science writing, and about how to apply these principles to revising examples of text from research articles. The lecturer will also talk about how to paraphrase text from published papers to comply with copyright restrictions.

--Break--

■ 16:00 – 17:00 The lecturer will discuss the criteria used for journal selection, resources to aid you in selecting a journal, and methods of avoiding submission to predatory journals.

Lecturer

David Kipler Cactus Communications K.K.

Writer/editor/trainer with more than 25 years of experience helping authors and presenters whose first language is not English; certified by Board of Editors in the Life Sciences; extensive experience in Japanese higher education.

Skills: Science and technical communication training; writing and editing journal articles on basic and clinical biomedical research; manuscript rewriting.

Registration

<http://u0u0.net/U84s>

Contact:
Academic Support Office, Nagasaki University
Tel: 095-819-2208
Email : senryaku@ml.nagasaki-u.ac.jp